About vilankulo

Trade in Vilankulo can be traced back as far as the 14th century, when Arab traders populated the area transporting gold, ivory and slaves to far off lands. By the 18th century the Portuguese had firmly established themselves in Mozambique and historians believe that rumours of pearls brought Portuguese explorers to the area. Sadly the pearls were later buried deep under the layers of sand carried by a hurricane in the early 1900s putting an end to this treasure hunting. The inhabitants of Vilankulo have come to rely upon fishing as a main source of income. In the recent years tourism has also become an important source of income in the village.

Vilankulo lies at the gateway of the Bazaruto Archipelago - Mozambique's only underwater National Park - which comprises of 5 islands - Bazaruto, Benguerra, Magaruque, Bangue and Santa Carolina (commonly known as Paradise island).

Some of the activities listed in this document include trips to these islands. We can advise and recommend specific trips once you are welcomed at Bahia Mar.

Tourism has a big impact on a small community such as Vilankulo. We ask you to bear this in mind, to be a responsible tourist and to respect.

BAZARUTO NATIONAL PARK

a gift from heaven

The marine national park of Bazaruto archipelago hosts the last viable population of dugongs on the East African coast, dolphins and whales are often seen.

There are four species of turtles, 2,000 fish species with 80% of Indo-Pacific species occurring here. The coral reefs attract a rich diversity of tropical fish and other marine creatures, and are regarded as some of the most diverse and least disturbed in the Western Indian Ocean.

Over 180 bird species, including the Crab Plover and the Olive Bee-eater that tunnels its nests into the sand dunes. Large flocks of migrant waders visit the fertile mud flats from September to April. The nomadic Greater Flamingo arrives from their mainland breeding sites around mid-October.

THERE'S A BIG DIFFERENCE BETWEEN SIMPLY BEING A TOURIST AND BEING A TRUE WORLD TRAVELLER

DRESS CODE

We have a wonderful mix of Arabic, African and Portuguese cultures. Although Mozambicans residing in Vilankulo are very familiar with tourism, generally they are conservative, so please respect this and dress appropriately in certain public places as skimpy clothes, short skirts and bikinis might offend some Mozambicans.

Take note that some people do not want to be photographed, some want payment, but others love it, especially if you have a digital camera and show the photos.

If you try to communicate in Portuguese or Chitsua, you will gain much respect, and have much more fun.

SHOPPING

Visiting the markets can be an interesting experience. Bargaining is the norm with curio and casual sellers, although prices of basic goods and fresh produce are usually standard. Shopping is regarded as a social event, so be patient - and enjoy the barter. But keep your wits about you.

Petty theft can be a problem, - be aware of those around you and keep valuables out of sight. 'Street-kids' are sometimes involved so do not encourage dependency by giving them money or gifts. It is however customary to give a coin to the old and disabled.

SOCIALISING & GETTING ABOUT

Vilankulos is a great place to party. Please note that Mozambique has a zero tolerance policy regarding recreational drugs (including cannabis). Avoid putting yourself in vulnerable situations – party with friends and if in doubt, arrange a lift home. During the day it is safe to walk around Vilankulos, although better to walk in groups, and try to avoid walking at all at night. There are some taxi services available, and Txopelas, - for information of these please ask at our reception.

ON THE BEACH

We recommend that you do not leave your belongings unattended.

'VILANCULOS' OR 'VILANKULO'?

Vilankulo is named after chief Vilankulo and some of the "bairros" (suburbs) are named after his sons. During colonial times the name was changed to Vilanculos as the Portuguese do not use the letter K much and prefer the 'ssh' sound of the S. At independence the name was changed back to Vilankulo – with a K and no S. Today the district is called Vilanculos and the town Vilankulos, and many residents have Vilankulo as their last name.

BAZARUTO NATIONAL PARK

The Bazaruto Archipelago 10,000 years ago were part of the mainland, now the islands are about 10 to 25km offshore. The flora and fauna, (including crocodiles on Benguerra and Bazaruto islands) are evidence of this earlier link. The archipelago has sustained a thriving maritime community since the 15th Century. Portuguese trading settlements date from the 16th Century and Santa Carolina had a permanent Portuguese settlement by the 1850's. Today the archipelago is National Park land, and home to about 3,500 subsistence fisher people.

BAZARUTO ISLAND

Bazaruto is the largest of the five islands, 37 km long and 7 km wide. The name 'Bazaruto' originates from a local word 'Ushurutswa' meaning 'island of the mist', the Portuguese later changed this word to Bazaruto. Legend tells that pearls were once collected off the shores of Bazaruto Island for the Queen of Sheba. The island make up is diverse with sand dunes on the east side of the island and grassland scrub and wetlands to the west. Central parts of the island contain freshwater lakes which are home to the crocodiles.

BENGUERRA ISLAND

Ilha de Benguerra is approximately 11km long and 5.5km wide. Locals live on the island and grow small amounts of sweet potatoes and paw-paws alongside the casuarina trees planted by convicts in the penal colonies of the Portuguese rule. Pansy Island lies just to the North of Benguerra Island where two varieties of 'pansy shell' can be found.

MAGARUQUE ISLAND

Magaruque Island lies to the South of Benguerra Island and is the closest island to the town of Vilankulos.

To visit the islands you will require Park Entry tickets.

Tickets can be bought from registered tour operators that will most likely be arranging your trip out to the islands – otherwise you can purchase them at the Vilankulos National Park office in town.

Entry fee per entry:

International citizens: Adults 900MT.

SADC citizens: Adults 600 MT

Mozambican citizens: Adults 400MT.

Bob Dylan wrote his song 'Mozambique' in the restaurant of the hotel a few decades back.

The reefs surrounding Santa Carolina offer some of the best snorkeling in the Archipelago. As the tide pushes in around the shores of the island, it brings with it many amazing turtles playing in the currents.

After some snorkeling and island exploring, a freshly cooked lunch on open fire is served in a catered shady spot and guests can relax, enjoying the last rays of afternoon sun on the palm lined beaches before heading home.

SCUBA DIVING

Odyssea Dive and Dive Bazaruto.

Both schools offer similar packages with trips that include double dives (2 single dives with a surface interval) in different sites along two mile reef.

There are 2 main diving areas; Two Mile Reef for a beginner and leisure and relaxed dive and San Sebastian for a more deep and experienced dive.

The 2 mile reef trips are more popular and are organised as follows:

Meet at the dive center at 8am to try on wet suits and fins. Leave around 8.30am.

Stop on Bazaruto or Benguerra Island for a briefing. Leave to Two Mile Reef for the first dive. Maximum bottom time 60 minutes, air permitting. After the dive, enjoy a fantastic lunch break on Bazaruto, (about an hour), which gives enough time to rest, climb the dune and enjoy the stunning view from the top. After the surface interval, back to Two Mile Reef for the second dive.

Prices start from $120 per person which includes National Park Fees, Boat Trip, sandwich lunch and mineral water.

Discover scuba and PADI scuba courses also available on request (Open Water, Advanced, EFA, Rescue and Dive Master).

- Do not remove anything – corals, shells etc from the park.
- Do not buy any shells, coral, ornamental fish etc – even on the mainland.
